Modern Naval Warfare.

Nothing in all modern times has advanced more rapidly than naval engineering and warfare. Ever since the fact that a nation's life depends on its navy, it has been becoming more and more interested. But as it makes dull reading and as very few have had any opportunity to inspect a monster battleship at close range, most of us have, at least, only a vague sense of its magnitude and power. Therefore, Lyman H. Howes, moving pictures of a great naval attack in the opera house on Thursday night will prove not only distinctly novel and instructive, but will gratify much natural curiosity.

The pictures were secured only through special facilities given by the Lords of the Admiralty, England, and as Mr. Howes controls the sole American rights for the greater portion, they are exhibited in this country only by him.

Barre citizens endorse them.

S. H. Maxwell, barber, at 305 North Main street, Barre, Vt., says: "My occupation, of course, requires a good deal of standing and stooping over and I suppose this is what brought on kidney trouble in my case. I had a heavy dull pain nearly all the time just over the hips, and at night when I got through working my back would be so lame that I could hardly get around. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at E. A. Drown's drug store. Before I had used one box I could see they were helping me and after taking three boxes I was completely cured of all my former troubles. I give all the credit for this to Doan's Kidney Pills and always speak a good word for them whenever I have a chance."

AGAINST ORGAN COMPANY.

C. H. Davenport Demands Accounting by Carpenter Concern.

Battleboro, Sept. 10.—A decision was handed down Saturday by Judge W. H. Taylor of Hardwick, finding $400 and interest due Charles C. Abbey of Chittenden, Mass., in his suit against Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turner of Battleboro, and orders that the defendants' equity of redemption under a mortgage covering the Turner farm in Marlboro shall be foreclosed unless the judgment is paid within one year.

The Turners leased Silverdale hotel at Springfield lake of Mr. Abbey, but refused to pay rent, claiming that Mr. Abbey did not make certain repairs as agreed upon. Mr. Abbey denied making any agreement about repairs.

Judge Taylor also gave a decision in the case of C. H. Davenport against the Carpenter company, owners of the Carpenter organ. Mr. Davenport sued for an accounting, claiming that as a stockholder in the company before it reorganized there was upwards of $30,000 due him. He lost the case and then began another action. The defense, in its plea, claimed that the points litigated in the first case were decided in the last.

Mr. Davenport demurred and the court sustains the demurrer and holds that the plea is insufficient. Unless the defense goes to the Supreme court on law points, the case is ready for trial upon its merits.

"The Red Mill."

Charles Dillingham's production, "The Red Mill," the musical novelty of the year with book and lyrics by Henry Blossom and music by Victor Herbert, will be seen here for the first time at the Barre opera house on next Saturday evening.

"The Red Mill" comes with perhaps the most thorough endorsement ever accorded a comic opera having been continuously given for an entire season at the Knickerbocker theatre, New York, in which time some 379 performances were given.

The play is conceded to be the most novel musical offering of many seasons, having a consistent and well-written story, with a melo-dramatic "thrill" which fairly took New York off its feet—the escape from the mill. Mr. Herbert has provided a score of musical gems, and Mr. Dillingham has given a production in his well-known princely style, the company being carefully coached, including the cute six Little Dutch Kiddies. The scenes being laid in Holland permits of the most picturesque scenery, while the costumes are decidedly quaint and artistic. The company numbers about sixty people. Tickets Friday morning.

"The Red Mill."

Messrs. Victor Herbert and Henry Blossom are again to the fore with a comic opera which is said to far outshine their latest collaboration "Mlle Modiste," which was written expressly for Mme. Fritzi Schell. "The Red Mill" has undoubtedly proved the most important success that has been on Broadway for many years, as it continued to play to capacity audiences for one entire year at the Knickerbocker theatre, so its presentation here will surely prove a more than passing interest. The advance reports of the piece, the sort that comes from the privileged ones who have been to New York and witnessed it, indicate that "The Red Mill" will certainly be presented here to a capacity audience. At the opera house next Saturday night.

HORSE STEALING CHARGED.

Paul Warner of Milton Arrested in St. Albans Yesterday Morning.

St. Albans, Sept. 10.—Paul Warner of Milton was arrested Sunday morning on the charge of stealing the horse and buggy belonging to Safford E. Thorp from Brown's sheds Thursday evening.

A search for Warner was made by Sheriff George C. Holmes and other authorities after the man's identity became known. He was the man who leaped from the buggy and took to the woods when two Milton men recognized the team he was driving as the one stolen.

Warner was walking on Taylor park about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning when Chief Mahoney spotted and arrested him.

A FOG AT SEA.

It Frightens the Timid and Even Discourteous the Brave.

This curious picture of an arrival at the Hook of Holland is by C. Lewis Hind: "I awoke suddenly. It was full daylight. My watch indicated 4 in the morning. We should be nearing the Dutch coast. But why had the boat stopped? Why had the devastating search of the screw ceased? I clambered from my berth and withdrew the curtain from the porthole. Sea and sky had gone. We were enveloped in a dense fog. The wall of the siren roused the passengers. A fog at sea unstrings the nerves of the timid and discourteous the brave. I noticed that the landing platform had been extended and that two life lines were coiled upon it. On the bridge were five men. The captain stood in the center with two of his subordinates on either side. They leaned over the rail peering into the wall of fog. I went forward. Three of the crew were bent double over the bows seeking the black mass that might be moving toward us. I could almost fancy I heard the crash, the shouts and the rush of feet.

"The air was damp. I went below. A dozen passengers were gathered around the breakfast table sipping tea and toying with toast. When the siren wailed my neighbor, a girl, who was about to eat a mouthful, replaced the crust upon the table and folded her hands. A woman cried silently. A large, dabbly man took the seat adjoining mine, rested his elbow upon the table and covered his eyes. I thought he was praying, but when the steward advanced and stood inquiringly before him he raised his head for a moment and said, 'Ham and eggs'."

"Those homely and unfamiliar words relieved our depression; also the vessel began to move faster. Soon the siren ceased, and when the captain stooped into the cabin and called for a cup of hot coffee we—well, I think some of us could have danced a jig. I went on deck.

"There was Holland. The sun was scattering the fog. We passed the place where the Berlin was wrecked. Pooh! Who minds fear on the morning after, with all the adventures of a new day waiting?"

ENGLISH LOCAL SPEECH.

Peculiar Way the Names of Some Towns are Pronounced.

We English are horribly phonetic and think nothing of spelling our name Featherstonhaugh and pronouncing it Beecham. If you motor you must twist your tongue to the local speech. There is a quiet village in Kent that is spelled Stalsfield and has achieved the distinction of keeping a railway station at nine miles distance. But if you ask your way to it you must call it Starchell or you will never find it.

Huntingdonshire claims the purest English, as Hanover the purest German. But by the peasants Papworth is called Parpor. And not far distant is another village of beauty. The motorist turned upon a rough road and asked the intelligent laborer where it would take him. "That road," said the honest countryman, wiping his brow, "will take you to 'Ell, sir."

The courageous motorist went on and found Ellsworth, which is merely Ell-set.

The trouble as to the pronunciation of place names makes one very diffident, a correspondent complains, as to venturing upon pronouncing any that one knows only by the eye and not by the ear. Being a Suffolk man, he knows that Waldrighfield is Wunnerful and Chelmondston is Chimestone, while in the adjoining county of Norfolk, Happisburgh is Hazebro and Hunstanton Hunston, and visits to the west country have revealed that Badsworth is Badgeroy and Cornwood Kerwood. The result is that he would not dare to make a shot at Uttoxeter or Bathampton, never having happened to hear either referred to by a native. After all, there are unfortunate differences of opinion among Londoners, even as to Southwark, Brompton and the two Bromleys.—London Chronicle.

Don't Be Too Thoughtful.

Some people are often accused of being thoughtless, but better that should happen sometimes than always being regarded as too thoughtful. The habit of thinking too deeply on every item has an immense amount of failure at the bottom.

Whether it was best to learn shorthand or a language perplexed one individual for seven months. He could not make up his mind as to which he would derive the most advantage from. He might have learned any one of those accomplishments in the time he took to think about it.

This is the case with many people, and Fortune has an awkward habit of crushing the too thoughtful just as much as the thoughtless.—London Answers.

The Overruling of a Judge.

A judge once awoke in the night to find his room in the possession of two armed burglars. Covered by the pistol of one of the marauders, the judge watched the proceedings with his usual judicial calm. One of the depredators found a watch. "Don't take that," the judge said; "it has little value and is a keepsake." "The notion is overruled," replied the burglar. "I appeal," rejoined the judge. The two burglars consulted, and the spokesman then replied: "The appeal is allowed. The case coming on before a full tribunal of the supreme court, that body is of the unanimous opinion that the decree of the lower court should be sustained, and it is accordingly so ordered." Pocketing the watch, court adjourned.

Majesty.

"My wife adores the majesty of the Alps, whereas I the majesty of the ocean," said Pfef.

"And your daughter?" inquired a friend.
